School enrollment drops severely

The drop in pupil enrollment, in the Wilmington public schools is "even more than we planned" Superintendent Walter Pierce said, Monday night, to a meeting held in the Barrows Auditorium of Wilmington High School.

The school department has been expecting the enrollment to drop off, and had planned its figures accordingly. However, this year alone, there are 55 fewer pupils than had been projected.

Pierce said in kindergarten to grade six was the biggest drop. There were 2,442 pupils projected, but only 2,412 are enrolled, a drop of 30. There is also a drop of 26 in grades seven and eight.

Four thousand six hundred eighty-seven was the project figure for this year, in the schools. The actual enrollment was 4,632.

Pierce projected plans for closing down classrooms, over a period of years, to allow for the projected drop in pupil enrollment.

He believes that in five years there will be only 88 classrooms of pupils. The figure today is 108.

Pierce also believes there will be a corresponding drop in the number of teachers in the public schools.

The Swain School

The Swain School, the brick building facing the common, will become a part of Wilmington High School, Pierce hopes. It was originally built as a high school, back in 1915, and was so used for over 30 years.

Pierce would transfer present grade school pupils in the Swain School to other schools, and would also close the Buzzell and Walker Schools. There would be larger districts, around the remaining schools.

The only area not to be near a school would be on both sides of Main Street, near the southern part of town. Those pupils would become a part of the Shawsheen School, and would be bussed to that school.

Twenty-five in class

One result of the figures which were given to the audience would be to reduce the number of pupils in a class to lower than 25, in about four years. Because of this Pierce was trying to establish "permanent" districts, with little or no future shifting of pupils from one district to another.

Twenty-five or less pupils to a class is a standard which the (State) Department of Education has been trying to achieve for several years. It is also a goal of the Wilmington teachers, Pierce said. There is not, he said, any part of the teachers contracts which so states.

Next year, Pierce says, there will be nine classes with 26 pupils, and three classes with 27, but by 1982-83 there would be only three classes with 26 pupils, and two with 27.

By the same year, there would be a total of 88 classrooms. Today there are 108.

Pierce believes that the Swain School will be used for grade school pupils for one more year. During that year there will be empty classrooms in the Shawsheen and Glen Road schools. The Walker and Buzzell schools would be closed.

Then there would be more transfers, which as yet have not been planned in detail, but the Swain School would be entirely used for high school students.

There were 93 persons in the audience, of whom about 20 were connected with the school department.

On Thanksgiving Day

My mother cooks a big turkey. I Love the Smell of the Turkey cooking. We also have mashed potatoes, Squash corn, peas, and stuffing. It is really good. My mother also makes an apple pie and Squash pie. We have a lot of company. We have my Grand mother, Grandfather, Uncle Larry and Aunt Helen at our house for dinner. I wish it was thanksgiving every day.

Police criticized in vandalism cases

A Church Street resident appeared before the Board of Selectmen Monday night with complaints about the police department's handling of two recent incidents of vandalism and disturbing the peace.

According to John Sanborn, on November 25, at 1:10 a.m., police were called in to investigate a complaint of cars speeding around the football field and tearing up the high school lawn.

Six or seven youths were taken into custody, Sanborn said. However, since that time, he charged, the incident has been allowed to drop.

"Nothing has come out of this incident...nothing at all," Sanborn said. "The superintendent of schools hasn't even seen fit to get an estimate of the damage."

In fact, Sanborn said, one of the vehicles involved in the incident was parked in front of the high school, creating a disturbance, at 2:30 a.m., a week later. This time, he said, when the police were called they merely drove by in the cruiser and tooted their horn at the vehicle.

Sanborn had with him a copy of a report Superintendent of Schools Walter Pierce had made to the selectmen several months ago, outlining the extent of damage caused by vandalism in Wilmington's schools.

"How can you put files like this out about damage and expect the people of Wilmington to do anything but laugh at the Wilmington Police Department," he said.

Earlier in the meeting, Chairman of the Board Aldo Caira had read a letter from the recently re-organized Vandalism Committee requesting that the selectmen instruct the police department to enforce laws prohibiting public drinking and trespassing.

The committee was formed last spring by the selectmen acting with the cooperation of the School Committee. It got off to a slow start, however, losing two co-chairmen in succession and only recently began building up steam under a new co-chairman, Patricia Gagnon of the school department.

At a meeting held November 13, the committee again discussed the staggering amounts of vandalism in Wilmington. During the month of October alone, it was learned, 101 windows were broken and had to be replaced.

"Indications are that the damage to schools is in the area of $40,000 a year," said Selectman John Imbimbo, a member of the Vandalism Committee.

Future plans of the committee include community education with a special slide show depicting some of the more graphic instances of vandalism in Wilmington now being prepared for future showings to parent groups and a police report being prepared by Wilmington Police Officer John Ritchie and Sgt. Bernard Nally on the extent of damage "beyond the schools."

The committee also plans to investigate the present alarm systems in the schools.

"A lot of what we will try to do initially will be topical applications," Gagnon said. "Education is a long-term solution, but people are angry and want something done now. Eventually we will get into long term solutions."

Gagnon also stressed that the problem is a community one, affecting local businesses and homes as well as schools.

"Most businesses will simply hire someone to clean up on Monday morning," she said. According to Gagnon this leads to apathy on the part of citizens who don't understand the extent of the problem and to higher insurance rates and consumer prices.

She said she is requesting a meeting with the Chamber of Commerce to try and shed some light on the extent of damage done to businesses by vandalism in Wilmington.

"We are not talking about mischief. We are talking about a serious community problem," said Gagnon.

Part of what the committee hopes to accomplish, she continued, is to create awareness among citizens that there is a support group available. She urged citizens with knowledge of damage to contact her at the Curriculum Center or to call other members of the committee.

Co-chairing the Vandalism Committee along with Gagnon will be the new Assistant Town Manager Reginald Stapczynski. The committee's next meeting will be held on December 5 in the public library. All interested persons are urged to attend.

A special gift

A special present was made to the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, last week. It was a check, for $3,000.

The occasion was a Rotary luncheon, at the Health Center. Retired druggist Mel Woodside took the occasion to make the present in memory of his wife, Lil Woodside. Lil, of course, was the lady who started everything in the first place, for the health center.

Ray McNamara, chairman of the Gifts Committee, accepted for the center. He is also president of the Regional Health Center Association.

Paolini gets his permit

by Elaine DePasquale

Over the objections of the Wilmington Conservation Commission, the board of selectmen Monday night voted 3-2 to grant a permit for gravel removal to Anthony Paolini.

The permit is the second allowed for a gravel removal operation in recent months.

According to Paolini's attorney, Joseph Courtney, an earth removal permit was issued for the site, located north of Route 125 on Ballardvale Street, three and a half years ago. At that time the work was to be done in three separate stages. In 1977 after completing the first stage, Paolini applied for a renewal of the permit. This time he was turned down.

Since that time, said Aldo Caira, chairman of the board of selectmen, there had been a problem with unauthorized dumping on the site. After the material caught on fire, attracting attention to its presence, Paolini was ordered to remove it by the state and the Department of Public Works.

According to Courtney, Paolini responded by removing some of the material and burying the rest.

The main reason for Paolini's new application for a gravel permit, Courtney said, was to make it economically feasible for him to remove the rest of the material without sustaining a financial loss.

In a letter to the selectmen, the members of the Conservation Commission stated that they opposed Paolini's request because of the impact it could have on the environment.

The letter referred to the site as "basically a wasteland in the making." Paolini has promised, however, to return the topsoil to the property once the grading has been completed.

Reference was also made by Courtney to the fact that that site does not contain any wetland areas and would not require a Hatch Act hearing. In addition, he said, there is very little residential property in the area.

In sharp contrast to an August, 1978, hearing at which dozens of neighbors turned out to protest the granting of a gravel removal permit to Leland Chisholm of Andover Street, there was only one abuttor present Monday night. Al Fiorenza, who owns property adjacent to Paolini's said he was in favor of granting the permit.

"I feel that a person who owns land and pays taxes on it should be allowed to do what he wants with it provided he leaves it in good shape when he is finished," said Caira.

Voting in the negative were Selectmen John Imbimbo and James Banda.

The selectmen also received petitions from two separate neighborhood groups attesting to dangerous traffic conditions near their homes.

Nichols Street resident Howard Stevens and seven of his neighbors presented their petition along with verbal complaints about excessive speeding on Nichols Street. Specifically, the residents asked for either a dead-end street, an extension of the sidewalk to Brown Street or an island at the far end of Nichols Street near the Tewksbury line which would slow down drivers coming around the sharp curve at the beginning of the Street.

The residents were informed by Caira that to dead-end the street would be illegal and that approval of a sidewalk could only come from the Town Meeting. The selectmen did say they would instruct the safety officer to review the situation with an eye to "selective enforcement" of the speed laws.

In a letter to the board, still another neighborhood group, the residents of Salem Street, complained of the danger of heavy trucking along the residential street. Caira instructed Acting Town Manager Bob Peters to handle the matter through the police department.

In the absence of Town Manager Sterling Morris, who is currently hospitalized for a health check-up, the selectmen wrangled with a memorandum of agreement, reportedly supposed to have been signed last August, which would commit the town to implementing an Equal Opportunity plan within a specific period of time. Members of the Conservation Commission and the Recreation Department indicated that funds for which they had applied had been held up because of the town's failure to sign the memorandum and could possibly be lost entirely.

It appeared unclear to the selectmen exactly what had prompted the delay. A letter explaining the situation had been received only a few days ago, Caira said, though the date on the letter was September 28.

By a unanimous vote, the board authorized Peters to fulfill the memorandum of agreement and forward it in Tuesday's mail.

Lake Street bridge bids

Bids have been opened for the construction of the Lake Street bridge, over the Boston & Maine railroad, Rep. James Miceli has announced. Construction should start soon, and will be "rapid."

The bids at present are being reviewed by the Bridge Division of the State Department of Public Works.

The T & T Construction Company of Winchester was the low bidder, at a price of $67 thousand.

On Saturday, September 9, St. Thomas' Church in Wilmington was the scene of a rainbow wedding when Rosann Sadowski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Sadowski, became the bride of Mark Guarino, son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Guarino, both of Wilmington.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Francis Mackin, while traditional wedding music was played by soloist James Profiro.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a candlelight gown of chiffonette, featuring bishop sleeves and a bodice of re-embroidered Alencon lace. Her cathedral length veil, falling from a Camelot cap, was edged in matching lace with scattered lace appliques. She carried a bouquet of white roses, carnations, daisies and ivy.

Leann Sadowski, sister of the bride served as maid of honor. She wore a blue Quiana gown featuring a Queen Anne neckline edged in lace, lace cap sleeves and matching picture hat. She carried a rainbow bouquet of peach, green, blue and yellow carnations and daisies with blue ribbons to match her gown.

Bridesmaids included Robin Amaro and Maria Matos, cousins of the bride and Caren Vanderley and Mary Chester, friends of the bride. Cherylan Amaro, the bride's cousin was junior bridesmaid and Brenda Savosik was flower girl.

The brides wore identically styled gowns and picture hats in rainbow colors. Each carried a rainbow bouquet with colored ribbons to match their gowns.

Serving as best man was the groom's friend Bill Bickmore. Ushers included Carl Guarino, brother of the groom, Al Guarino, cousin of the groom, Rick Silva, cousin of the bride and Allan Vanderley, friend of the groom. Brian Kerwin, the groom's cousin was junior usher and the groom's nephew Jason Guarino was ringbearer.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Sadowski chose a blue crystalline floor length gown with a matching corsage which she carried on her purse. The groom's mother wore a two piece strawberry pin-on corsage.

A reception following the ceremony was held at the King's Grant Inn in Danvers where Anne Reilly circulated the guestbook.

Mrs. Guarino is a 1974 graduate of Our Lady of Nazareth Academy and a 1978 graduate of Lowell University. Her husband is a graduate of Wilmington High School, class of 1973 and currently attends Boston Architectural Center.

New cook book has local flavor

Just in time for the holiday diet-breaking season, two former Wilmington women have published a cook book. And although neither Janet (Condrey) Beyer nor Phyllis Higgins now live in Wilmington, the book does contain several references to the town.

"The View from Grandma's Kitchen" is a book of more than 200 recipes, divided into a half-dozen chapters. The title does not refer to any particular grandmother, but is intended to capture the theme and feeling of anyone's grandmother's kitchen. Each chapter is introduced with a few paragraphs of wit, nostalgia or advice. Several other anecdotes are interspersed among the recipes, one of which gives Asa Sheldon's method of predicting the number of snowstorms in a season. The passage was extricated from Sheldon's autobiography, "Wilmington Farmer," published in 1862.

"Note the day the first snow falls and to that add the age of the moon the day that it falls, and the product will be the number of snows to come that year. For example, if the first snow falls the tenth day of the month and the moon is fifteen days old, add ten to fifteen, and you have the number of snow storms for that year."

The book was written by Janet Beyer, a Concord resident whose family still lives in Wilmington. She is the daughter of Mrs. Gertrude Condrey and the sister of Mrs. Judy Palm. The illustrations in the book are those of Phyllis Higgins, who once lived at 47 Middlesex Avenue, now the home of Bruce Belason. Mrs. Higgins now lives in Northfield, Vermont.

The two were neighbors in Wilmington, and became good friends. Mrs. Higgins had long wanted to do a book with her friend, but with growing families, they never had time until they had both moved away from Wilmington. The book was produced in a series of meetings, for which each would drive half way. Much of the work was done in a booth at Howard Johnson's in Brattleboro, Vermont.

The Wilmington roots of the writer are evident in her description of the flooding of the cranberry bogs for winter. Although the book does not refer to any particular bog, the memories which prompted the description are straight from Wilmington, when the land which is now Rotary Park was a cranberry bog.

The book was published in Vermont, and copies are available locally, in somewhat limited numbers. Stores in Andover, North Andover and Concord have a somewhat larger stock of the books.

Of the hundreds of recipes in the book, there are some elaborate, some simple. Many of the recipes carry a person's name, such as Betsy's Pumpkin Soup, when the source was a friend or relative. Other recipes might come from a local source, for example Brooks School Pancakes.

Mrs. Beyer recommends the following recipes for Thanksgiving:

Author Janet Beyer and illustrator Phyllis Higgins

leftover turkey?

Baked Sandwiches

- 16 slices bread, trimmed and buttered on both sides
- 2 cups chicken or turkey, cooked and cubed
- 2 eggs, hard boiled and sliced
- 1 cup mushrooms, sliced
- ½ cup ripe olives, chopped
- ½ cup onion, grated
- ½ cup mayonnaise
- Topping:
- 1 cup sour cream
- 1 can cream of chicken soup

Set eight slices of the bread in a 9 x 13 pan in a single layer. Mix together the chicken or turkey, eggs, mushrooms, olives, onions and mayonnaise and spread over bread in pan. Put remaining eight slices of bread on top. Mix together the cream and soup and spread over the top. Bake at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes.

Thanksgiving recipes from 'Grandma's Kitchen'

Betsy's Pumpkin Soup

- 1 quart rich milk
- Medium onion, sliced
- 4 whole cloves
- 4 sprigs parsley
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- Nutmeg
- Bayleaf
- 3 chicken bouillon cubes
- 1 teaspoon pepper
- 3 cups canned pumpkin
- Lemon juice
- Scald everything except pumpkin. Add pumpkin and cook over hot water for 15 minutes. Add a little lemon juice.

Mulled Cider

- 1 gallon cider, preferably the "homemade" variety found at roadside stands, not apple juice
- A few sticks of cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon whole allspice
- 1 teaspoon whole mace or 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup brandy
- 1 cup rum
- Simmer for 45 minutes all ingredients, except rum and brandy. Add rum and brandy before serving and heat through.

Cranberry Mold

- 1 large package lemon gelatin
- 2 cups boiling water
- 2 cans whole cranberry sauce
- 1 whole orange, ground

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add cranberry sauce and mix very well. Add orange, seeds removed. Serve with sour cream which has been mixed with a little mayonnaise. The sour cream mixture can be thinned and made more flavorful by the addition of a little fruit juice.

Thanksgiving Turkey Stuffing

- 16 ounces commercial poultry stuffing
- 1 Green pepper, remove seeds and ribs and dice
- 4 stalks celery, cut into thin slices and chopped
- 1 cup almonds, filberts or walnuts, chopped
- 1 cup raisins
- 3 apples, cored and finely chopped, but not peeled
- Mix stuffing according to the directions. Let raisins stand in boiling water until they are plump and drain. Mix all ingredients in a large bowl. This will stuff a 12-15 pound turkey.

Cranberry Bread

- 2 cups flour
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon soda
- 1 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons melted shortening
- 1 cup cranberries, halved
- 1 cup nuts, chopped
- 1 egg, well beaten and mixed with the juice of
- 1 orange plus water to make 1 cup liquid

Mix and sift together the dry ingredients. Mix egg with diluted juice and shortening and add. Add cranberries and nuts. Stir slightly. Bake in a greased and floured loaf pan for 1 hour at 350 degrees.

Swedish Apple Nut Pie

- 1 egg, beaten
- ¾ cup sugar
- ½ cup flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup nuts, chopped
- 1½ cups apples, thinly sliced
- Cinnamon and nutmeg for the top
- Mix egg and sugar. Add remaining ingredients one at a time. You do not need a mixer for this. Pour into a greased pie tin. Sprinkle top with cinnamon and nutmeg. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Serve warm with ice cream or whipped cream.

This freezes very well. Cook it first, and then reheat. These are simple to make, and with a stack of aluminum pie tins and a bushel of apples, you can have your freezer filled in no time.

Mrs. May's Butter Cookies

- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup shortening, half margarine, half butter
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 cups sifted flour
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- Cream shortening and sugar until smooth and creamy. Mix egg and vanilla and add to sugar-shortening mixture. Sift dry ingredients and add. Flour hands. Roll dough into small balls. Press down with bottom of a glass which has been dunked in flour. Try to find a glass with a flat bottom. It might help to hold floured wax paper over the bottom of the glass while pressing cookies. Sprinkle with colored sugar, or decorate with red cinnamon candy. Bake six minutes at 350 degrees, on lightly greased baking sheet.

letter

Dear Lari:

The Town Crier, last week, had an article about the high school band and its non-participation in the Veterans' Day parade. I would like to say a few words.

If other people knew Ms. Jackson as do the band members, they would know that if there had been any possible way for the band to march, it would have been in that parade and she would have been marching right beside it.

I would like to refresh your memory. The Music Department of Wilmington High School had already offered to donate the entire half-time period of the November 11 football game to the veterans, for their ceremonies. That offer was refused.

Three years ago the band was a non-participant. The Town Crier said it was two years ago. The point is that there are difficulties when a high school band is notified only a little while before the event is to take place. There is a routine to prepare. The band members must be told in advance and with sufficient time for them to plan their own family lives - for it means possibly skipping meals, trips, etc and other long-organized events.

I also wonder if you have ever played a brass instrument, such as a trumpet, trombone, or French horn?

If you ever had you would realize that there is a lot of "lip" as we call it, and loss of "lip" results in an inadequate ability to play.

If the band had marched, and played, in the Veterans' Day parade, and then tried to perform at the next football game, on the same day, it is possible that there could have been a half-time disaster.

Being in the band also takes up a lot of free time.

The band had scheduled practice that morning for an approximate two and one-half hour session. This was in preparation for the afternoon game. The routine had not been practiced since the previous Wednesday, because there was no school on Friday.

A new section was to be inserted into the old routine, and this requires a lot of practice.

Not only is there the routine for football games, for what is essentially a volunteer organization (of course, it is a school course), but there are such things as the winter concert, of which to think and plan.

We do not need depressing or degrading accusations, by people who do not know the whole story. We do like to be appreciated occasionally.

I do not mean to be rude to any members of the Veterans' Day parade committee. I do think the band deserves a little consideration, such as getting an ample advance notice of participation, in such a local event. I do not think the band members like being accused of "weaseling" out of such events.

Yours very truly,
Mike Spence, member
Wilmington High School Band

Review

Was 1959 really like that?

by Elaine DePasquale

It was funny, it was clever. It was fun to be in and fun to behold...an excellent choice for a senior class play, and the audience loved it.

"Tomorrow-Yesterday," a hodge-podge billed as a tragicomedy-historical-romance-fantasy of 1959, was presented by Wilmington's senior class last weekend at the high school.

The show, written by high school teacher Alan Braunstein, was another brick in the tradition in Wilmington...the production of plays by local authors. Last year's blockbuster, "Page After Page," one of the freshest, funniest shows to come down the pike, was written by a high school senior, Bill Cunningham.

This year's offering, while decidedly lacking in scenery and plot, more than made up for the deficiency with heaping helpings of artful gags, witty one-liners and a genuine tape recording of Woo Woo Ginsburg's Night Train show plugged into the dialogue at proper intervals.

Although most of the audience may have been too young to remember Ginsburg, Boston's favorite disc jockey in 1959, they certainly seemed to appreciate the music, the beat and the greasy-haired, leather-jacketed characters who reveled in it on-stage.

It was not so much a play as it was a happening...and what happened was an exercise in pure escapism combined with a skillful brush of nostalgia. I'd almost bet my bobby sox that Braunstein is a member of the rock and roll generation. All the right touches were there.

Aside from a predominance of pony-tails, a poodle skirt, saddle shoes and rolled up jeans, two characters looked especially familiar to a 1961 graduate of Wilmington High. They were Sleazo (Tom Gagnon) a typical "j.d." who carried a switchblade in his armpit, and Barnzie (Brian DelFino), who gave a classy performance as a young hood who thought he was Elvis. Whether cracking up his "motorcycle" (an MX Huff bicycle) on stage or twanging his steel (cardboard) guitar with his equally talented cohorts, the Rowdies, Barnzie caught and held the attention of the audience.

Other bits which worked were a re-make of "The Dating Game" hosted by none other than Dick Clark (Jay Jones) and a superbly choreographed number performed at the big dance by the Rowdies. Using their guitars for machine guns rather than musical instruments, the Rowdies jerked out "Who put the Bomp in the Bomp-Pa-Bomp-Bomp."

Another was the fantasy of one peppy little actress who dated an invisible boyfriend she said was James Dean.

The show was actually a series of living tableaux loosely tied together by a character known as Future (Sandy Joyce). Onto her capable shoulders fell the chore of giving all this tomfoolery some serious meaning. Although a fine actress, even Future couldn't pull off such a herculean task alone.

As the play opened, Future was dying. In order to save herself she was forced to travel to Earth to knock some sense into the head of her human counterpart, Robby (John Murphy).

The moral of the story was: the things you do today can kill your future or make it brighter. This important message was, however, almost lost in a tangle of slapstick routines (instead of pie in the face it was yogurt) and acrobatic tumbles.

The show was mis-labeled a musical. Except for two songs sung by the sweet-voiced Karen Mader (Carol) all the music was supplied by the Ginsburg tape. A play with music would have been more accurate.

Another faux pas for a fifties spoof was the use of slangue coined long after the hip generation had retired to grocery carts and station wagons. Words like "bommar," "gross" and "nerds" were taught to me by my children, and in 1959, jokes about Anita Bryant would still have had to be about music or orange juice.

comment

Editorial

How ridiculous can one be?

The state alcoholic beverages control commission recently closed the bar of the Wilmington Knights of Columbus. Two reasons were cited.

1. The members of the Board of Selectmen of Wilmington are members of the organization and consequently were in conflict of interest.

2. There was a possibility that the Knights would be selling liquor to minors.

It can possibly be understood how some officious appointed state board member could stand at a gnat, and come up with the conflict of interest point, because all of Wilmington's selectmen are members of the organization.

What not be understood is how those officials came up with a story about selling liquor to minors. That seems to be sheer imagination. To discuss the thought is a waste of time.

But the story that five selectmen are in conflict of interest. That's the interesting one.

Wilmington happens to be a town where there is no political division because of differences of religion. Persons belonging to all three of the major religious faiths have been elected, at the same time, to town office. Sometimes the board of selectmen is all Protestants. This year it so happens it is composed of Catholics. Nobody worries about that point.

Because they belong to that particular faith, and because they are members of an organization such as the Knights, they are now wrong.

If they happened to be Protestants, and if they happened to be members of the Shriners, would the ABCC have declared them to be in conflict of interest when the Shriners got their license?

It is true that there have been some minor problems, regarding liquor, in Wilmington. The same problems exist in many other cities and towns of this Commonwealth - clubs with a private bar, etc.

Every community has such problems.

Wilmington is a town in which the Board of Selectmen cleared up the problem. It took several years of work on the part of individual members.

There were several town meetings, and several times that votes were taken, only to find that inadvertent errors had been made, and another vote was necessary.

Finally the errors had been cleared up, and there was an almost unanimous vote by a well attended town meeting for liquor licenses to such fraternal organizations.

The effect of that vote was to regularize the town, with respect to the laws of the Commonwealth. The selectmen deserved a lot of credit for their work.

Then some political appointees find that they are in conflict of interest!

By a decision of the town meeting, the three fraternal organizations of Wilmington were to get licenses to sell liquors within their organizations.

The selectmen obeyed the vote of the town meeting.

Possibly some one should acquaint those political appointees of the meaning of a town meeting vote.

Fifties fun

When the seniors of Wilmington High School took to the stage last weekend, it was as if 1960 had not yet arrived. Brian Del Fino, in the dark glasses and leather jacket, played "Barnie," and Jay Jones, at left, played Dick Clark.

school bazaars ushered in the holiday season in Wilmington last Saturday. Santa put in appearances at several locations to hear the requests of youngsters and to remind them to behave.Traditional church fairs were held at the Congregational, Methodist and Baptist churches. On display were bumper crops of gift suggestions, gourmet treats, plants and used items.At four of the elementary schools in town annual holiday fairs were also held. Run by the Parent Advisory Committee (PAC) of Mothers' Club of each school, the fairs help to finance special projects or purchase needed equipment that the schools could not otherwise afford.Trading was brisk at the Walker School where the Mothers' Club had organized a first-floor game room complete with fish pond and a basement cafe to cater to the appetites of hungry shoppers.
Pat Puma, the club's secretary, said that the club's fund-raising activities pay for the school's field trips and holiday parties.At the Boutwell School, also run by that school's Mothers' Club, youngsters tried their hand at a ring-toss game and stood in line to ride a handsome black and white pony while their parents browsed among tables overflowing with merchandise.Both the Shawsheen and the Glen Road schools attracted a large number of visitors. At the Glen Road School, Santa arrived by fire engine. For a small fee, parents could purchase pictures of their youngsters on Santa's lap.The Shawsheen School's fair was a particularly lucrative venture. The event, run by the PAC and co-chaired by Ellen Corson and Joan Fiore,brought in close to $1,250. It was the fair's third season.
"We were really pleased," said Corson, "We did better this year than we have ever done before."According to Corson, final decisions on how the moneywill be spent must be made by the PAC's Expenditure Committee. One of the suggestions, she said, was to purchase an organ for the school's music department.Last year the Shawsheen PAC purchased a kiln for theschool. They also treated the youngsters to a visit from the Zoomobile and to a special Arts Assembly, and sub-awards ceremony as well as provides equipment and the work in return for training.

The students will have the advantage of learning up-to-date office skills, performed in a realistic setting.The Air Force, exploring ways to update and improve the way it handles paperwork, began testing a variety of word processing machines at the Electronic Systems Division, Hanscom Air Force Base, about a year ago. The tests involved applying automated procedures to the base's regular administrativeworkload. Air Force designation for the effort is Project Impact (for Improved Administrative Capability Test).
Shawsheen and the Air Force recently agreed to include the school in Project Impact. It would provide Shawsheen the use of modern office machines, which it might otherwise not have had.
Moreover, training on actual Air Force work would offer students materials and situations that were more realistic than textbook drills.
The Air Force is helping train potential future employees, in addition to receiving some assistance in getting its job done.A special room to house the new equipment at Shawsheen opens this week. It contains two word processing consoles and a time-sharing computer terminal.Under the direction of Shawsheen instructors, the students will take handwritten or rough draft material from the Air Force and type it on consoles, which automatically record the input on cassette tape memories, much like simple computers. Themachines then provide a printout of the work as it was typed in. Students edit the printouts, make electronic corrections, and when finished, dispatch the products to a central computer by telephone data link. The offices at Hanscom which sent the work to Shawsheen get the products from the central computer on terminals of their own.Long range plans call for installation of even more sophisticated Air Force word processing equipment at Shawsheen, according to Walter Pritchard, Hanscom's Technical Manager for Impact. The cooperative venture between Shawsheen and the Air Force was originally suggested by Mr. Pritchard, who is also a Shawsheen Advisory School Committeeman, and by Captain Fred McMillan, Hanscom Director of Administration.Project Impact equipment is also in use at about a dozen

Changes approved

At its November 8 meeting, the Wilmington School Committee gave a nod of approval to High School Principal George Eisenberg's recommended high school course changes and debated the pros and cons of ability grouping among junior high school students.

Among the new courses to be added next year in the student handbook are Specialty Clothing, Basic Senior Child Development, Drafting-Technical Communication, FORTRAN Programming, Senior String Orchestra, Guitar Rock Ensemble, Drum-Percussion Lab, Reading Skills, Freshman and Applied Science.

To be dropped next year are courses in Food Service I and II, a family living course called S.T.E.P. and a science course, Action Chemistry.

At the recommendation of School Committeeman James Demos a course in Nurses Aide Training will also be offered in the annual handbook, on the theory that, because of the proximity of the new Regional Health Center and the number of job opportunities opening up there, a new surge of interest will be generated in the course.

Despite the recommendation of Committeeman Phil Fenton, however, that Latin be included in the high school curricula, no such proposal was made by Eisenberg. Five of 37 respondents to a questionnaire Eisenberg distributed among parents recently indicated they would like to see the subject re-introduced into the high school. Eisenberg has said, however, that when the course was offered in previous years, almost no one signed up for it.

The biggest change in the high school curricula will come in the English Department, where the grouping of junior and senior English electives into three classes of ability levels has been approved.

All students will still be required to complete 20 credits in English in order to be eligible for graduation. In the junior and senior years, however, these may be accomplished by the choice of two electives, one each semester, worth 2.5 credits each.

In addition, a series of eight English electives will be open to students in all four grades.

According to English Director Robert Romano the purpose of the new course structure is to offer alternatives in grades 11 and 12 that will create an interest in English.

Discussion of the proposed ability grouping in English courses led to a question by Committee member Linda McMenimen about why students at the West Intermediate School were grouped in classes according to ability while students at the North Intermediate School were not.

"It should be standard in both intermediate schools," McMenimen said, "because they are all going into the ninth grade together."

According to Romano, however, no noticeable differences in test scores have arisen among ability-grouped students and those in heterogeneous classrooms. The reason, he said, students were not grouped according to ability at the North Intermediate School was that teachers there have expressed no interest in ability grouping.

Also at the meeting, Fenton asked that a letter be sent to the town manager, the chairman of the board of selectmen and the superintendent of public buildings attesting to the hazardous conditions in existence at the Boutwell and Glen Road schools.

According to Fenton, lighting facilities in the schools' cafeterias are literally falling apart. Shields which normally cover the fixtures, he said, are either non-existent or damaged, resulting in danger to youngsters from breaking glass when balls or other objects hit the lights.

For the town to install new shields would cost approximately $1,000 per school, said Pierce, and replacing the entire units would be an even greater expense.

In other business, Demos requested that the superintendent of schools review the duties of the position of director of special education and report back to the committee with a recommendation on whether those duties warrant expanding the job to a 12-month position with four weeks vacation.

Then the lights went on and everyone shouted happy birthday!! Now she knew why the lights were out, her friends wanted to surprise her. She was very happy!

Ecumenical Thanksgiving services

There will be an ecumenical Thanksgiving Service Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the First Baptist Church, sponsored by the Wilmington Council of Churches. Participants will be from the Wilmington Baptist, Catholic, Congregational and Methodist Churches.

The Rev. Charles Koumrian, interim pastor of the Congregational Church will deliver the Thanksgiving message - "In Everything Give Thanks."

There will be three special selections, by the adult and children's choirs, in addition to the congregational singing. The public is welcome. There will be nursery care provided.

Dismal turnout for Community Schools meeting

A small, but determined group met at the Wilmington public library last Thursday night to discuss the possibility of forming a Community Schools Council.

"I don't know where we are," said Lester White dismally. White, a member of the Community Schools study committee originally chartered a year ago by the selectmen, could barely contain his disappointment at the poor turnout. By his own estimate, only 11 people attended who were not either members of the committee or representing some other board in town.

They were, he said, "not enough people to run a community schools program."

After a study of the community schools programs in nearby towns, the committee last March sponsored an article at the Town Meeting requesting $20,000 to initiate the program. It was defeated, largely, according to Committee Chairperson Barbara Hooper, because the townspeople didn't fully understand how the program was designed to work.

Since that time, the selectmen have withdrawn their sponsorship of the group. Its members and interested individuals are now seeking to establish a base of support among townspeople for an independent community schools program which would be self-supporting or which could attract funding from the department of Health, Education and Welfare.

While no definitive action was taken Thursday night, some suggestions were tossed out for consideration. High school teacher Steve O'Brien offered to put together a local history course for the program and suggested that, since the group presently had no funds, one way to begin would be to offer a few courses or activities and charge a fee for participation in them.

Two members of the Wilmington Spotlighters were also present at the meeting and offered their support.

It was decided that those who were present at the meeting would attempt to recruit more workers for the program. Another meeting was set up for December 13.

Community Fund seeks storage space

Selectmen are hoping they have found a possible solution to the Wilmington Community Fund's problem of where to store its equipment.

According to Aldo Cairra, chairman of the Board, the Selectmen will ask Superintendent of Schools Walter Pierce if the Community Fund could be allowed to use the now vacant Audio Visual Center (once the West School) if they are willing to assume the cost of upkeep on the building.

"I see nothing wrong with letting the Community Fund use the building if it is indeed vacant," Cairra said.

According to Community Fund member George Hooper, the audio visual department is now housed in the library.

Meanwhile the selectmen have still found nowhere to relocate another community group, the Wilmington Spotlighters, if the selectmen decide to follow the suggestion of Town Manager Sterling Morris and close the Mildred Rogers School where the Spotlighters and the Recreation Department are based.

senior topics

Vial of Life

The Wilmington Council on Aging is urging seniors to participate in a program that could save their lives in the event of an emergency. The so-called Vial of Life is a small, plastic container which holds pertinent medical information, including an individual's medical history, doctor, preferred hospital, medications and next of kin. The vial is placed on the right hand side of a refrigerator's top shelf, where fire and police emergency teams have been instructed to look for it. Join them by picking up a vial of life form at the Drop-in Center in Wilmington Plaza.

Reserve now for Christmas party

A Council on Aging Christmas party for seniors will be held Thursday, December 21, from 6:30 to 11 p.m. The evening will include dinner, dancing and surprises. Everyone is asked to take a gift for exchange. Ladies should take a woman's gift, and men should take a gift for a man. These should be clearly marked for a man or woman recipient.

The party is free for Wilmington seniors. Make your reservations now by going in person to the Drop-in Center, or by calling 657-7595.

Eligibility level raised

The maximum allowable income for persons eligible for free homemaker and other services from Minuteman

Home Care Corporation (MMHC) has been raised to $5,200 for a single person and $7,300 for a household of two. People within this income range may receive services from MMHC free of charge.

Those whose incomes exceed the maximum allowed may, as of October 1, 1978, receive services on a fee-for-basis. They will be charged a monthly fee, computed on a sliding scale according to their incomes. For a single person, the fee will range from $4 to $15 per month. For a household of two or more people, it will range from $9 to $20 per month.

Seniors inoculated

Many seniors took advantage of the flu and pneumonia clinic held at the Regional Health Center last Sunday. The Council on Aging provided transportation to the clinic. Thanks go to Irving Storms for manning the phones and mapping out the routes, and to Foster Balser for driving the Drop-in Center's mini-bus. This volunteer operation helped a lot of seniors to attend the clinic.

Can Redmen slow red-hot Cats?

Two very different football paths cross Thursday morning

Robarge holds his ground

This Week in the MVC

Guy with the 'big red T' picks Wilmington

by Rick Cooke
Wilmington line coach Jim Gillis is of the opinion that I "still wear a big red T" across my chest. Well, Jim, I never owned a varsity sweater - I think they faded from the scene shortly before I played for Tewksbury High in 1972.

Believe it or not, oh football faithful of Wilmington, I can still remain objective in the face of my TMHS diploma and the name Redmen that will always be a part of my past, but that was years ago and frankly, Wilmington High has the better football team this season and should win the annual Turkey Day tussle (10 a.m. kickoff at WHS) in what should be an excellent football game.

The last two Thanksgiving battles have been lopsided routs, with the Wildcats stunning Tewksbury 32-0 in 1976, and handing the Redmen their first loss after nine wins as WHS went to the Division II Schoolboy Super Bowl.

Last Thanksgiving Tewksbury returned the favor with a 27-0 pasting of Wilmington at the Center School gridiron. Neither game was a characteristic Wilmington-Tewksbury barnburner. The Wildcats blew the Redmen away in the first half in 1976 and Tewksbury jumped out to a 21-0 first half lead in last year's game.

Wilmington has earned the right to be a slight favorite in this year's contest and could make it a rout if the young Tewksbury backfield can't recover from a poor performance in the 7-6 loss to Austin Prep. Tewksbury assistant coach Connie Barry summed up his team's performance against the previously winless Cougars. "We stunk," concluded Barry. "A similar effort against the Wildcats will mean a Wilmington rout."

In other Turkey Day encounters Billerica is at Chelmsford looking to upset the unbeaten Lions, Dracut is at Methuen. Lawrence Central travels to Andover and Lawrence hosts Lowell in a non-league windup.

The pick-em slate going into the final day is, 27 right, seven wrong with one tie. This week's MVC picks:

Wilmington 21, Tewksbury 8... Wilmington's high powered passing attack could give the Tewksbury defensive backfield fits. The Redmen must put pressure on the Robarge-Briggs-Woods trio or a blowout could ensue.

If Tewksbury's offense moves the ball at all this will be an excellent football game. The key here is the performance of sophomore quarterback Dennis Vecchi and senior backs Paul Weitz and Guy Indelicato. When Weitz and Indelicato have been healthy this season they have taken much of the pressure off the sophomore quarterback. Vecchi has had excellent games against B.C. High and Central Catholic and in both of those contests Weitz was healthy and running with his usual abandon. He also gives Vecchi an excellent target swinging out of the backfield. Indelicato is a strong runner between the tackles for Tewksbury.

Wilmington's defense has come a long way with Phil Russo, Tom Carroll, Briggs and Matt Phillips being the key people on that side of the WHS unit. That unit must be wary of the play-action rollout passes that Vecchi favors and the screens to Weitz and sophomore halfback Tom Horgan that proved so successful in Tewksbury's 20-7 win over Central Catholic.

Wilmington has a decided edge at the skill positions where the quarterback Robarge has had a super year throwing to Woods and handing off to the elusive Briggs - all three juniors on the rise in the MVC. Wilmington's offensive line, like Tewksbury's, is an

by Rick Cooke
When this high school football season started first year Wilmington head coach John Ritchie, a veteran WHS assistant coach who has seen many a winner, didn't expect his young club to win five games - while Tewksbury coach Bob Aylward, a former Wilmington assistant coach, hardly thought his club would lose its first four games and go on to its first sub-500 season since 1973 when Tewksbury finished 1-8-0.

These two teams and their respective coaches who went down very different roads this season meet Thursday morning (10 a.m. kickoff) at WHS in a game that could cap a surprising Wildcat season or give the Tewksbury team a ray of hope for its football future.

Wilmington has topped Austin Prep (20-0), Methuen (9-6), Billerica (14-7), Lawrence (21-0) and Central Catholic (43-6) with the losses coming to Andover (21-14), Chelmsford (19-6) and Dracut (14-8). The Wildcats began the season with a scrimmage against Stoneham, a non-league opponent in recent years.

Tewksbury got off to a dismal 0-4 start and never recovered in compiling a 2-7-0 record to date. The Redmen defeated Lawrence (33-16) and Central Catholic (20-7) while losing to Boston College High (10-7), Andover (18-2), Methuen (16-12), Billerica (2-0), Chelmsford (27-0), Dracut (26-0) and Austin Prep (7-6). Tewksbury leads the series that began in 1935, 21-15 with seven ties.

TMHS blanked the Wildcats 27-0 last year with the Wildcats gaining a Division II Super Bowl berth with a 32-0 win in 1976.

Wildcats surprise Ritchie

Ritchie admits that he never expected his young team to win five games this season. The Wildcats, who finished at 4-5-1 last year under veteran coach Fred Belissimo, have just eight seniors on their roster and suit up 17 juniors, 15 sophomores along with eight freshman for the Thursday morning clash.

When asked if he was surprised by the play of his young team Ritchie said: "Yes, in retrospect I see Chelmsford as probably the only team that we would never have a chance at beating." The team has rebounded nicely from a tough loss at Dracut and Ritchie says that the Central rout "was probably our best game of the season."

An understatement to say the least. The Wildcats passed and ran through the Red Raiders and the second team was driving for its second score late in the fourth quarter when Ritchie instructed his quarterback to fall on the football.

The Wildcats looked strong at the skill positions at the start of the season while a shaky situation in the offensive and defensive lines has improved from week to week.

"I knew we had fairly good backs and that our line was going to be suspect," admitted Ritchie who coached under Belissimo for 19 seasons. "A rebuilding program had to take place up front, and I have to give a great deal of the credit for that area's improvement to Jim Gillis (line coach). This group has come along faster than I expected," said the veteran WHS coach.

The starting Wilmington offense has the junior Robarge (6'1", 155) at quarterback with senior fullback Tim Moran (5'11", 185) and senior halfback-tri-captain Sal Carbone (5'11", 180) in the backfield with the junior Briggs (5'11", 175) who also handles the place kicking duties.

Junior Dave Woods (6'1", 180), Robarge's main target, will team with improving sophomore Joe Burbine (5'10", 165) at the ends.

The offensive line, that questionable area that has surprised with its play - especially its consistent pass blocking - will have senior Bob Lurvey (6'5", 240) and junior Mike Downs (5'11", 185) at the tackles, senior tri-captain Tom Carroll (5'10", 185) and sophomore Dennis Foley (5'8", 165) at Carroll, Lurvey, Moran, Briggs, Carbone and Woods are two way starters for the Wildcats. Carroll and sophomore Mike Russo (5'11", 170) will start at the defensive ends with juniors Bob DiGirolamo (6'0, 200) and Chris Nolan (5'11", 195) at the tackles. Lurvey will man the middle guard post.

The linebackers will be Moran and Briggs along with senior tri-captain Phil Russo (5'9", 180) who has been Wilmington's ringleader on defense this season.

Woods and Carbone start in the defensive backfield along with impressive sophomore Matt Phillips (5'11", 175).

Ritchie was shocked by Tewksbury's 7-6 loss to previously winless Austin Prep. "I'd rather have had Tewksbury win that game," said Ritchie after last Thursday's practice. It (a Tewksbury win) makes it a hell of a lot easier to get the team (Wilmington) up" concluded the WHS mentor.

Ritchie and Tewksbury head coach Aylward see the TMHS season as one of might have beens. "Tewksbury was in quite a few ballgames, they were 0-0 with Dracut at the half. It's just been a bad luck year for them. I know he (Aylward) had the personnel and I know he's had several injuries. You're going to see a different Tewksbury team than the one that played Austin Prep," said Ritchie.

Redmen look to rebound
"Believe it or not the attitude is half decent," said Aylward while watching the undefeated Tewksbury freshmen whip Wilmington 33-6 last Friday. "We've lost four games by less than one touchdown and Dracut as far as I'm concerned was a 14-0 game."

Tewksbury's defense has played steady ball while not forcing the turnovers that could have helped the TMHS offense with inexperienced players at the skill positions. The offense has been unable to capitalize on any mistakes that an opponent

The future is now come Thursday might make. "We just haven't been able to capitalize inside the four down territory," said Aylward.

Inexperience and injuries to senior backs Paul Weitz (bicep) and Guy Indelicato (hamstring) have plagued the TMHS attack. "We just can't call our offense. We've had to play second and third string backs and their inexperience has hurt us. It's really hurt us having to play those younger guys," said Aylward.

The 0-4 start was the worst since Aylward took over in 1974 when his team began its season 0-3 and rebounded to finish 5-4-1. "I never believed it could have happened to us, but still we could have overcome that situation," concluded Aylward while watching the freshmen pile up the points Friday.

The Redmen will be putting the ball in the defense's court Tuesday morning with 11 seniors starting. Tewksbury has excellent size in its front five with senior ends Dan Bradley (6'0, 215) and John Burns (5'10", 165) heading the cast. The tackles will be senior tri-captain Dave Puzzo (6'4", 240) and senior first year starter Sid Jenkins (5'11", 165) with senior Steve Von Kahle (6'0, 205) getting the not at middle guard.

The linebackers are seniors Joe Chevelier (5'11", 180) and Dan Boudreau (6'0, 165) with senior tri-captain Tim Brothers (5'11", 165) and senior Dave Burns (5'8", 155) at the defensive backs. Defensive back Brian Foley (5'11", 170) is the lone junior starter on defense. Sophomore Dennis Vecchi (5'9", 135) is the other starter in the defensive backfield.

TMHS has five starters going both ways and Vecchi bears a big burden playing defense while also getting the starting nod at quarterback. Senior quarterback Al Schultz has seen spot duty and engineered Tewksbury's 33-16 win over Lawrence while Vecchi was sidelined for three weeks with a knee infection. Vecchi returned to lead the Redmen over Central Catholic and went the distance in the loss to Austin.

Dennis will team in the starting Tewksbury backfield with senior tri-captain Weitz (5'7", 140), Indelicato (5'7", 160) and sophomore Tom Horgan (5'2", 110). Junior Mark Weitz and Tim Brothers have also seen duty in the TMHS backfield.

The ends will be Tim Brothers and Foley with Don Rubino (6'1", 205) at tackle along with junior Mike Smith (5'10", 175) has played at center most of the season.

Junior Bill Johnston (5'8", 185) has moved in at center flanked by senior guards Chevelier and John Burns.

Aylward has been giving sophomores considerable playing time, but the Thanksgiving Day game is traditionally a final fling for seniors and the TMHS mentor will probably go most of the way with the vets.

Ritchie and Aylward coached together under Bellissimo for several seasons and it's doubtful that one will surprise the other come Thursday. Ritchie likes his team to throw the football out of a multiple offense while Aylward likes to pepper his sweeps and crossbucks with an occasional screen or flat pass to a running back. Aylward has liked the flea-flicker pass in the past, but that play has been limited this season due largely to the inexperience of Tewksbury's skill people.

inexperienced group that has worked hard to improve itself throughout the season.

The Redmen defense is a steady veteran contingent with 11 seniors starting Thursday morning. It has been a steady unit but has been unable to come up with the big play that forces the important turnover as have other Bob Aylward coached clubs. The defense must come up with the big play at Wilmington along with putting a pass rush on Robarge. The Redmen front four has not been able to put good heat on the passer this season but that aspect of the TMHS game could be bolstered if middle guard Dave Kiernan (broken jaw) can return after being sidelined for a month.

Wilmington's Bob Lurvey (6'5", 240) and Tewksbury's Dave Puzzo (6'4", 240) are two boys who bear watching Thursday morning. Both have had good spurts and both are capable of leading their respective club's inside games. Lurvey plays at offensive tackle and middle guard for coach John Ritchie's Wildcats while Puzzo has played strictly defensive tackle since an early season experiment at tight end.

Chelmsford 42-Billerica 0...The Lions roll into the Division II Super Bowl game with Catholic Memorial the likely opponent. A Billerica touchdown let alone an upset would be cause for celebration against a team that features a superb high school offensive line that blocks for the talents of quarterback Kevin Attar, halfback Phil Murphy and a fleet of capable running backs coming off the bench.

The Indians have chucked the veer offense that had troubles moving the ball earlier in the year, but the Lions get more people to the ball on defense than most high school clubs. This 10-0 team is one of the best teams to ever come out of the Merrimack Valley Conference.

Dracut 28-Methuen 14...The Rangers upset Dracut two seasons ago when the Methuen club hadn't won a game up to that point. Methuen usually plays Dracut tough and the home team's speed (Kevin Tarr) matches up decently with the Middies. Dracut quarterback Bill Stecchi should have a field day however.

Andover 34-Central Catholic 20...This could be a wild game with quarterbacks Mike Lefebvre and Manny Silva filling the morning air with footballs. Central's defensive secondary, slow to the football all season long, will be burned consistently by the Andover run and shoot attack.

Lawrence 18-Lowell 8...I haven't seen much of the Lowell team, but Lawrence apparently is in gear behind senior quarterback Sammy Johnson. Not a good game to say the least.

There will be no championship on the line Thursday morning, but both coaches still expect to have a good time plotting the course their teams will take. This is Ritchie's first Thanksgiving head coaching experience and he's looking forward to battling Aylward and his Redmen. "It's going to be fun playing against Bobby," said Ritchie. The Wildcats and Ritchie have had their share of fun this fall. Aylward and Tewksbury are still looking for a good time.

Extra points...Tewksbury striker Mark Riddle, sidelined after the Lawrence win with a broken ankle, will not play while middle guard Dave Kiernan is probable. Dave suffered a broken jaw in a car accident after the Lawrence game and his fine play has been missed by the TMHS defense. Dave was going to the doctor Monday (Nov. 21) to get the word on whether he could play Thursday morning.

Frosh go unbeaten

Tewksbury frosh crush Wildcats, 33-6

by Rick Cooke

Andover East played it smart when they decided not to play the Tewksbury freshman football team, instead taking a forfeit in the first game of the season. The Tewksbury frosh finished the season at 9-0-0 with a 33-6 romp over the Wilmington frosh at the Center School field Friday in a game played for the most part in darkness and under a steady drizzle.

It was over early with Tewksbury taking a 33-0 halftime lead and assistant coach Ernie Lightfoot giving the "no more scoring" orders along the sideline. Quarterback Phil Farr helped spark the first half rout with a pair of touchdown tosses as Tewksbury put five first half TDs on the board.

Farr connected with Rich Bradinick and Charlie Santos for TD tosses of 30 and 50 yards respectively. Neil Simpson loped 70 yards for a TD on a pitchout and Bob Leitch weaved 50 yards for another Tewksbury score. Frank Fay capped the first half scoring when he returned an interception 25 yards for a touchdown.

Halfback Pete Fentross rushed for a two point conversion and Santos toed an extra point to round out the scoring. Wilmington finally snapped the shutout with a fourth quarter touchdown.

Wildcat quarterback Ken Runge was plagued by a strong Redmen pass rush as Tewksbury intercepted four passes. Leitch had a pair of thefts as coach John Donoghue's team had four interceptions for the game.

Extra points...Tewksbury High head coach Bob Aylward watched most of the freshman game after his varsity had concluded practice and he was impressed with the performance and attitude of the unbeaten frosh. "Their attitude is great," said an impressed Aylward. "They're winners, they possess a super attitude and they can't wait to get up to the high school," concluded the Tewksbury coach. "They just don't make mistakes," said assistant coach Barry Sheehan of the team that includes many players who starred for Tewksbury's MVC champion Pop Warner teams last year.

The frosh wins came over Billerica (29-0), Lawrence (28-12), Chelmsford McCarthy (35-0), Dracut (30-6), Lawrence Central Catholic (37-6), Austin Prep (27-6) and Methuen (25-8). All the lopsided wins came after the opening game forfeit of Andover East. In several games Tewksbury took commanding leads early in the game and held the score down by attempting first down field goals. Varsity coaches Sheehan and Jim Kastitis admitted they had never seen a freshman team dominate opponents so completely.

The Tewksbury High athletic department pulled out all the stops for this outstanding team Friday as the scoreboard and public address system were put into operation - a rarity for a freshman football game. A good crowd sat through a cold rain to watch the Tewksbury club cruise to its ninth win.

The Wilmington frosh, under coaches Jim Tildsley and Len Chin, were a good football team with a 5-3-1 record, but were burned early by Tewksbury's explosive attack. Quarterback Runge and halfback Craig Richards were the Wilmington leaders throughout the season.

The Tewksbury frosh had eight backs of equal ability and they all scored this season. Santos finished as the top scorer with eight touchdowns and several conversion kicks while Leitch had six TDs on the year. Farr fired five touchdown passes and rushed for one TD.

Bradinick and Fay were the Tewksbury co-captains. The offensive line was led by center Mike Coveyou, tackle Ed Ferreira and guards Steve Higgins and Buddy Pelczar. On the defensive side the mainstays were Todd DiRocco, Steve Kasprzak and Mark Indelicato. Help is very definitely on the way.

Frosh quarterback Phil Farr (10) goes down on a rare sack with Wildcats Walter Palino (87) and Ken Runge (15) doing the honors.

Burke sparks romp

Shawsheen clinches Super Bowl berth

by Rick Cooke

The Shawsheen Tech Rams bolted to a 13-0 first quarter lead and piled it on lowly Minuteman Regional in a 48-6 rout at Lexington Saturday to clinch a berth in the Division II Super Bowl as well as the Commonwealth Athletic Conference in the first undefeated season in the team's history.

Coach Bill Ritchie's team finished its season with a 9-0-0 record and 12 consecutive wins dating back to last year. Minuteman was within five points at 13-8 in the second quarter but the visitors put that threat away quickly with 19 points before halftime.

Quarterback Scott Burke scored three touchdowns in that second quarter, all one yard bolts after impressive Ram drives. The champs jumped out to a 13-0 first quarter lead after Paul Jamieson came up with his first fumble recovery at the Minuteman 46. Burke then put the game's first points on the board with a 36 yard touchdown strike to tight end

Mark Morrissey. Mark Hurley later scored on a 12 yard run before Glen Bosteels toed the extra point for a 13-0 lead.

A Paul Kamm interception set up Regional's first score in the second quarter. The theft gave the home club the ball at the Ram four and halfback Charlie Rau scampered the final four yards on the first play and Ed Rila rushed for the extra points to cut the Shawsheen lead to 13-8.

Halfback Fred Olshaw helped his mates bury Shawsheen in that second quarter as he bolted 20 and 12 yards to highlight a 65 yard march that gave the Rams a 19-8 lead. Burke's one yard TD burst was followed by a bad Minuteman snap on a punt that gave the leaders the ball at the Minuteman two. Burke repeated his one yard diving act and the locals led 25-8.

The crusher came late in the first half when Morrissey recovered a fumble at the Minuteman 27 to set up Burke's third touchdown of the second quarter. His one yard sneak and Bosteels' second conversion gave the Rams a 32-8 halftime cushion.

Olshaw scored on a 27 yard TD run in the third quarter and the Rams' backup group put another six on the board in the quarter with Bill Roy bolting 81 yards for the game's final touchdown. Bill Roderick rushed for the two point conversion.

Rick:

I have always been a "stranger" to the game of football.

To me, it was such an exercise in futility to watch two teams line up and two seconds later have players scattered all over the field.

Saturday's game in Tewksbury between the Pawnees and the Apaches has changed all that for me. I was completely out of control, watching the Pawnees come back in the second.

The Apaches played excellently and did everything they could to hold their edge over the Pawnees, to no avail.

The first half seemed a bit disappointing for Pawnee fans for it seemed the team couldn't get it together. Then, we remembered the team's efforts the week before in the second half and we all took heart.

In the second half the score was 14-7 in favor of the Apaches, when Shawn Monahan caught a pass and scooted in to tie the score.

Everyone screamed including me to "hold that line." I wasn't even sure what it meant, but it sounded good to me. As if this wasn't enough to make one's heart skip a few beats, Joe Poulter, scored the winning TD in a 20-14 win.

Sincerely,
Mary Hallisey

Wildcats-Redmen analysis

Wildcats survived a season of intangibles

by Rick Cooke

If ever there was a season of intangibles this was it. The little things that mean the difference between a win and a loss. The variables that make for a winning season or a losing season. The unexpected can happen - and often times does when a team just can't quite get a couple of wins on the board early in the season. Early success builds confidence while injuries, misses assignments and turnovers usually erode it at a rapid rate. Those unexpected variables and different degrees of execution are what has made this a successful season for the Wilmington High School football squad and a disappointing campaign for the Tewksbury High team.

Coach John Ritchie's Wilmington Wildcats were a young team with several talented juniors manning the skill positions and major question marks in both the offensive and defensive lines at the season's outset. This was supposed to be a rebuilding year, but thanks to the skills of juniors John Robarge (quarterback), Chris Briggs (halfback), and Dave Woods (receiver) and a nose-to-the-grindstone job by an inexperienced offensive line, the Wildcats have won five games with good execution of Ritchie's pass oriented offense - an offense that before the Central rout had become passing predictable - a surprisingly favorable flaw that would never have applied to past Wilmington contingents who liked to bang away at the opponents middle under former coach Fred Bellissimo.

The Wilmington kids have responded to Ritchie and his wide open, multiple attack. Inexperience on defense was a factor in the losses to Andover and Dracut - two games that with a break at the right moment the Wildcats could just as easily have won. Chelmsford was the only team to dominate Wilmington - and the Lions have steamrollered everyone in a perfect season for coach Tom Caito's powerhouse.

The Wildcats 7-1 going into the annual Thanksgiving Day head-banger with Tewksbury? It could have been done had everything fallen into place. Enough little variables crept up on the Cats to create a pair of tough losses.

Unfortunately, Tewksbury was swamped with the little devils early on and never recovered from an 0-4 start.

While the Wildcats got off to a surprising 4-1 start before their games with the conference iron - Chelmsford and Dracut - the Redmen were already 0-4 with the Lions and Middies on the horizon. Not many people expected either Wilmington or Tewksbury to beat those two teams and they didn't - with Wilmington playing an excellent game at Dracut only to lose late in the contest.

While the Wildcats executed on offense early in the season the Redmen did not and placing too much responsibility on defense can be fatal unless it is a super human unit. Tewksbury's defense was a good, gritty group, but not the outfit that could make up for fumbles, interceptions and poor execution deep in its own territory. It's tough to ask any defense to accept such a burden.

Wilmington was doing what it had to do to win and Tewksbury was not - it's that simple. The TMHS offense scored just one touchdown in the first four games and that was after the defense had recovered a fumble on the Methuen 13. That game was eventually lost with the offense being unable to get untracked. The following week, Billerica blanked Tewksbury 2-0 in the worst MVC football game of the season.

By the time Bob Aylward's team got itself untracked it was too late. Lawrence was belted in a monsoon and then came the bury jobs by Chelmsford and Dracut. The team rebounded behind a superb performance by sophomore quarterback Dennis Vecchi to whip Central 20-7 in the eighth game of the season before the offense reverted to form and was nudged by previously winless Austin Prep the next week. The Redmen had plenty of chances to send the Cougars packing with a winless season - but like three of the previous losses early in the season Tewksbury just couldn't get over that hump lined with pitfalls that means the difference between winning and losing.

Tewksbury had sophomore backs who missed holes early in the season. Wilmington had juniors back there with a year of experience after a 4-5-1 season a year ago. You roll with the punches, you go with the sophs, giving them the ball until they get it right. The Wildcats went through that process last season with Briggs and Robarge and the Redmen are in that stage at the moment with Vecchi handing off to a talented but inexperienced backs Horgan, Byrd, Mark Weitz, and Mike Jenkins. Time will tell if the experience of a 2-7 season has paid off. It is often said by people who have played this game that you learn more by losing than by winning. The Wildcats got an education in 1977 and the Redmen have gone to the gridiron school class of '78.

Injuries of course are among those variables that decide winners and losers and schools the size of Wilmington and Tewksbury can't compete with the large athletic bodies such as Chelmsford when key people can't perform up to par.

Aylward is making no excuses, but an almost season-long arm injury has hampered senior halfback Paul Weitz and senior fullback Guy Indelicato could have contributed more if it weren't for a sore hamstring that plagued him for most of the year. Linebacker Mark Riddle broken ankle and middle guard Dave Kiernan's broken jaw complicated things for a defense that was keeping the team in games early in the season when those two players were in the lineup and performing like potential all-stars. The young Tewksbury players needed all the help they could get this year and when the veterans were slowed by injuries it put a damper on everything Aylward was trying to accomplish in this, his first losing season as head coach after leaving the Wildcats assistant ranks four years ago.

The Wildcats have had one (possibly two, with Briggs breaking two fingers in Thursday's practice) serious personnel setbacks when defensive back and backup quarterback Dave Ballou was sidelined before the Andover game by mononucleosis. There is a chance that Dave could play Thanksgiving morning and that could bolster a team that already is riding high after bouncing back from the losses to Chelmsford and Dracut with a 43-6 whipping of Lawrence Central

Briggs turns
the corner

Wildcat halfback Chris Briggs turns the corner enroute to a 70 yard touchdown that was called back. Wilmington had plenty of points however as the Cats mauled Central Catholic 43-6 November 11.

Catholic.

Variables. Intangibles. They pull and tug at teams and the survivors of the tug-of-war come out with more wins than losses. The Wildcats are survivors of an unexpected 5-3 season. The Redmen are victims of a 2-7 season that could serve as the ground work for a winning season somewhere down the road - at least in two years when this season's talented freshman group has matured.

While the Wildcats were controlling their own fate the Redmen lost the handle and never did get the grip back.

They were there

Several players on the Tewksbury and Wilmington teams that will take the field Thursday morning were sophomores when the Wildcats stunned the Redmen 32-0 in 1976.

Wilmington tri-captain and guard Tom Carroll was a sophomore quarterback behind senior star Jim Stewart while the other Cat co-captains, Phil Russo and Sal Carbone, were backup running backs on that great Wilmington team.

Fullback Tim Moran rode the bench as a sophomore as did a big soph by the name of Bob Lurvey. Both boys will be two-way starters this Thursday morning.

Fifteen Tewksbury players were members of the team that won the MVC co-championship with a 9-1-0 mark. They include tri-captains Dave Puzo, Paul Weitz and Tim Brothers. Others who were sophomores on that team - Dan Boudreau, Dave Burns, John Burns, Guy Indelicato, Sid Jenkins, Dave Kiernan, Al Schultz, Don Rubino, Steve Von Kahle, Dan Bradley, Tim Kirchner and Joe Chevelier.

Series began in 1935

Wildcats vs. Redmen steeped in tradition

by Rick Cooke

Thursday morning's game will mark the 43rd time the Tewksbury and Wilmington High School football teams have met for their annual long war before the Turkey and all its fixins'. It's a series that began in 1935 and has featured the best and worst that football and the weather conditions that play a part in the sport have to offer. The Redmen have won 21 of these games while the Wildcats have 15 wins to their credit since the first tilt in 1935. There have been seven ties.

Tewksbury dominated Wilmington in the early years, holding a 10-2-1 advantage from 1935 through 1947. The Wildcats ended that TMHS string in 1948 when they crushed Tewksbury 58-0 in a holiday contest that veteran Redmen rooters would like to forget.

Tewksbury began another swing after the 48 blasting by capturing four in a row until the two teams battled to a scoreless tie in 1953.

Since that time neither team has put together an awesome Thanksgiving winning streak. The Wildcats have put together a pair of three in a row streaks (60-62 and 66-68) before going on a four game unbeaten string from 1970 to 1973.

The Redmen won three in a row from 1963 to 1965.

Over the years the Thanksgiving Day game has very often been a deciding factor in determining the Merrimack Valley champion.

Some of the greatest games in the star-studded Wildcat-Redmen history:

1969...Redmen 14, Wildcats 8 - Probably the greatest game in the long history as Tewksbury won its first and only MVC championship under Coach Robert Vadeboncoeur.

The Wildcats came into the game with junior running sensation Mike Esposito primed to rip up the tough Redmen defense.

Tewksbury's defense bent, but didn't break as all - Massachusetts linebacker Joe Hanley intercepted a pass in the endzone intended for Esposito to kill a fourth quarter Wildcat rally and save the game.

The dramatic defensive play by Hanley is probably the most talked about and remembered play in Tewksbury football history.

The Tewksbury offense was led by the backfield of quarterback Tim Walsh, and backs Mark Manley, Tim Bolduc, and Joe Delgrosso (the current Redmen trainer).

One of the most unusual psyche methods was conducted by Hanley and tackle Charlie Roux in the TMHS locker room as they whacked each other in the face prior to the game.

Hanley and Roux were elected co-captains for the 1970 season.

1970...Wildcats 13, Redmen 3 - Esposito and company remembered what the Redmen defense did to them the year before and made sure that it wouldn't happen again. This game was notable in the fact that Tewksbury managed to hold a powerful Wildcat team to 13 points.

Kicker John Stotik provided Tewksbury with its only points with a field goal.

The Redmen went with junior quarterback Ted Casey and fullback Kevin Sullivan was carried off the field with a neck injury.

1971...Redmen 0, Wildcats 0 - Tewksbury lost a chance for a second co-championship under Vadeboncoeur when a mud-field at home slowed both offenses to a crawl. The Redmen were coming off an upset of the MVC leader Dracut, but a snow storm had the players shoveling the bleachers clean and workers struggling to clear the field. What should have been a great game was ruined by the elements. Redmen Captain Hovey Qua was named the game's most valuable player and Casey hooked up with tight end John Smolinsky for a completed pass.

1972...Wildcats 13, Redmen 8 - The Redmen came into this game as overwhelming underdogs to the unbeaten MVC leading Wildcats.

A Dave Smith to Charlie D'Avanzo

26 yard touchdown pass put Tewksbury up 8-0 a lead that the underdogs held for three quarters.

Two fourth quarter TMHS fumbles and the passing of Wildcat quarterback Steve Coursey did it for the Wildcats.

Bob Bavota came on to fill the running shoes of injured WHS star Dean Devlin.

The 1972 WHS squad was one of the best defensive teams to come down the pike with linebackers Leo Campbell and Paul Olson, ends Jim McNally and Bruce McMillan and all-state tackle Alan Jansen.

1973...Wildcats 34, Redmen 0 - This game put the finishing touches on one of the most dismal seasons in Tewksbury football history. The Redmen finished 1 - 8 in Vadeboncoeur's final season as coach. Doug Stewart put on a receiving show for the Wildcats and Redmen fans got a glimpse of the flea flicker. (Tom Woods to Stewart).

Carl Butler had a super game at quarterback for the Wildcats.

The Wildcats' first score came when Rick Howlett recovered a blocked punt in the endzone.

Jack Holloway turned in an excellent game at middleguard for Wilmington. The game marked the end of a Redmen blue period as Tewksbury would dip into the Wildcat coaching ranks for a new coach and renewed spirit.

Fullback Tom Morin was named the TMHS MVP.

1974...Redmen 13, Wildcats 6 - Tewksbury held off a furious Wildcat fourth quarter rally that culminated in a heart-stopping goal line stand by the TMHS squad.

Halfback Rick Mackey scored both Redmen touchdowns and all-conference middle guard Mark Stevens was a standout on defense.

The win gave Tewksbury a 5-4-1 record under first year coach Bob Aylward, who was on the opposite sideline after serving as an assistant coach on Fred Bellissimo's staff.

Veteran Redmen starters were winners for the first time. Included in that group were Mickey Rasmussen, Steve Flagg, (co-captain), Mike King (co-captain), Chuck Minard, Gus Mancuso, Richard Sullivan and Jim Panzino.

The Redmen finished strong after getting off to an 0-3 start in 1974.

1975...Redmen 14, Wildcats 14 - The two teams played remarkably well considering the game was played in a torrential rain storm.

The Redmen, led by quarterback Tom Sullivan staged a fourth quarter comeback to gain a tie. Coach Bellissimo received a costly penalty when he ran onto the field to question a call that was going against Tewksbury - not Wilmington. The flag was thrown to advance the drive that enabled the Redmen to knot up the contest.

1976...Wildcats 32, Redmen 0 - Tewksbury's dreams of an unbeaten season and a berth in the Division II Superbowl were shattered by coach Fred Bellissimo's Wildcats who were led by a potent ground game featuring fullback Gordie Fitch, halfback Bob Sferrazza and quarterback Jim Stewart.

Fitch scored a touchdown and ran for 142 yards in 27 carries as the WHS offensive line blew the smaller Redmen off the ball. Sferrazza tallied a pair of TDs and finished with 138 yards on 16 lugs while Stewart was in control all morning, scoring two touchdowns and slashing for 59 yards.

Wilmington's defense shutdown junior TMHS running sensation Jay Petros.

Both teams finished the season at 9-1-0 for the MVC co-championship, but the Cat rout earned them the right to face Lynn Classical in the Division II championship game. WHS lost to Classical 20-12 at Boston University's Nickerson Field.

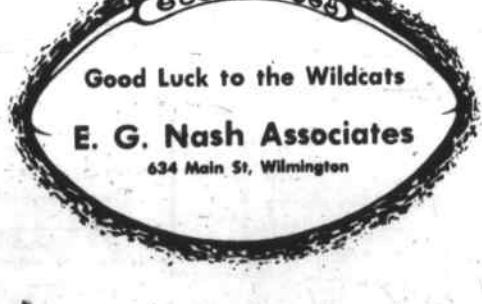

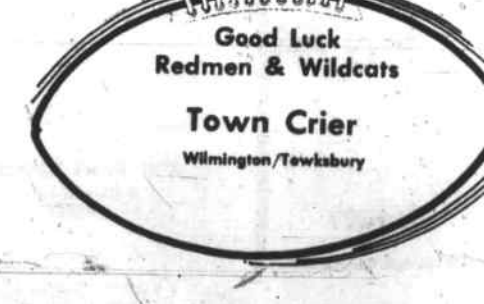

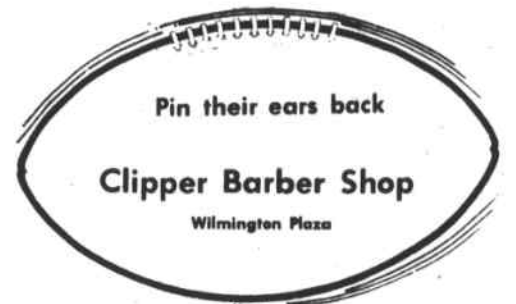

1977...Redmen 27, Wildcats 0 - Tewksbury senior quarterback Brian Wolfe fired two touchdown passes to Tim Brothers and Pat Puzo in a seven for 14 morning good enough for 158 yards.

Petros, now a senior, scored a touchdown and rushed for 90 yards on 18 carries to wrap up the 1977 season with 1,376 yards to conclude a brilliant three year career with 3,119 yards rushing.

Celtics take a course in public relations

by Rick Cooke

At least John Y. Brown knows a good public relations move when it practically walks up to him and slaps his face in the form of a six foot eight red headed center with a penchant for diving helter-skelter for loose balls.

The Red Sox, unfortunately aren't so astute when it comes to dealing with the public. Producing a winning product in a business-like manner is number one with Haywood Sullivan and Buddy LeRoux. In the long run the Red Sox brass holding the line on Luis Tiant's contract demands may prove to be the best route to follow while Brown has seen more than one sinking basketball ship go down the drain thanks to personal service contracts (remember Bird Averitt and Johnny Neumann?) for ridiculous salaries that put unnecessary financial burdens on his already shaky franchises in both the A.B.A. and the N.B.A.

While the Red Sox are operating on a rock solid financial base with a good profit margin (thanks to John Claiborne's handling of the Bursleson-Lynn-Fisk negotiations two years ago), the Celtics attendance has been declining at an alarming rate over the past three seasons.

Irv Levin, Sidney Wicks, the departure of Paul Silas, Cowens walkout and the apparent slippage in Red Auerbach's control of the club all have been factors. Another is the quality of the N.B.A. product that has signed up a large number of one-on-one egomaniacs who think the Gorilla Dunk is an art form for a player who had his 6'8" frame pampered through four years on a college scholarship.

The fundamentals aren't taught at the college level as they were five or six years ago. The coaches look for leapers, dunkers and the shot rejecters rather than looking for a player with the ability to develop some basis in basketball fundamentals.

Which brings me to the sorry situation that the Celtics find themselves in after 16 games. Winning two of 14 games under the now departed, gentlemanly Satch Sanders, Brown and Auerbach (me thinks his input was minimal) have gone to the public relations well and drained it dry in making what has to be considered a desperate move.

Important cogs in Celtics' future

New Boston Celtic player-coach Dave Cowens and rookie swingman Jeff Judkins will be the players responsible for leading the team back to respectability.

Dave Cowens, a 30 year old former Boston cabbie with a hot temper who once slept on a Boston Common bench after his team won a championship, has taken over the reigns rather impressively with two straight - albeit shaky, wins.

Dave was recently married and appears to have matured since his days as a part time cabbie. He seems to want this challenge - and believe me it will be no easy task to mold a group of veteran show stoppers into a cohesive unit.

Ah, here's the rub Rex Morgan. This club is made up largely of veterans who for years have thought the answer when their teams were in trouble was "give the ball to me and let me put an end to all this nonsense." Marvin Barnes had his St. Louis, Billy Knight his Indiana and Tiny Archibald his Kansas City, New York Nets and Buffalo. The traveling circuses built around these three talented solo stars failed miserably with the lone exception being Barnes when before his personal problems began he was a devoted board banger and passer. That, it appears at this writing, is ancient history as far as Barnes is concerned.

I wish Dave luck and I hope his health holds up. The only way this team can reach the 500 level is for Cowens to get them to scrap and rebound for 48 minutes as a unit. I don't say they have to be a well-oiled machine capable of fast breaking teams into exhaustion as were some of the past Celtic contingents. Just give the people their money's worth. The popular selection of Cowens as coach will wear thin quickly if the disorganized lackadaisia returns after his initial enthusiastic impact has worn off.

If Cowens gives Earl Williams, Jeff Judkins and Chris Ford more playing time and Cedric Maxwell can put two good games together back-to-back then there isn't much more we can ask of them until John Y. packs up his bags and takes his extra player luggage with him. Please, Larry Bird don't tear up a knee.

Sox hold the line

Luis Tiant is gone - and ough - he is a - I can barely spit it out - a Yankee. Tiant took the security of a 10 year contract and one can hardly blame him. No one should be surprised. Tom Yawkey operated the Red Sox for many seasons as a plaything - his athletic pride and joy.

LeRoux and Sullivan are businessmen. They've taken the hard line before and one can't expect today's businessmen to be concerned with public relations when people are feasting on their product.

Red Sox fans will call resident egotists Cliff and Claf and complain bitterly about how the Red Sox front office has been sticking it to them of late, but come March they'll come out of the woodwork and wonder if Gary Allenson is really getting a shot as the third string catcher. Baseball interest in this area is phenomenal and I doubt that the Red Sox front office feels the fans need too much coddling at this point.

Stewart stars at Tufts

Former Wilmington High quarterback Jim Stewart starred as a sophomore halfback with this season's 5-3 Tufts University football team under coach Vic Gatto. Stewart made the transition with few problems, gaining 371 yards in 44 carries for a 4.4 average. In the Jumbos final game Jim gained 85 yards on 14 carries in a 16-14 win over Bates.

Pop Warner teams enjoy trip

Tewksbury's Pop Warner teams and their families enjoyed this past weekend's trip to Clarksburg, New York. It was the second year in an exchange program that saw three New City teams making the trip to Tewksbury a year ago.

The Tewksbury A's squad played to a 13-13 tie and the C team battled to a 0-0 stalemate. The B's boys lost 19-12.

Martin fields questions

Wilmington High Athletic Director James Martin has been on the job now for about five months. In next week's Crier sports section Martin fields questions from correspondent Elaine DePasquale in his first interview since taking over the Cat sporting helm.

Ask the Referee

Three officials won't help Celtics

by Dave Magee

I have not really finished kicking myself for not turning in my Celtics tickets this year. However, I have at least rationalized going to the games to analyze the three-man officiating system used in the N.B.A. this year. Please don't ask me if this insures a better game. The way the Celtics are playing, the last thing the spectators need is a game with 65 fouls - hand-checking or no hand-checking. Do three officials see more fouls? Probably, but the system comes under question when all three of them miss a call.

Let's discuss the new season. Rule changes for 78-79 are minimal and involve mostly wording changes for clarification. Officials have been asked by the rules committee to emphasize the following points during the season:

1. Holding or grasping the basket - this is a technical foul and usually occurs during a dunk.
2. Handchecking - player contact with hands or arms is a foul and should be called.
3. Conduct of a coach and bench personnel - unsportsmanlike conduct on the bench is defined in the rule book and must be penalized by officials in order to control the game.
4. Charging by the jump shooter - if the jump shooter causes contact by jumping into the defensive man who is within his legally established plane, the foul should be called on the shooter.

Let's see how you do with some questions (true or false)

1. Can the player making a throw-in step on the court boundary lines?
2. Player A-1 tries for a field goal. The shot is short and strikes the floor. Player A-1 recovers the ball, which has not touched another player, dribbles in and sinks a shot. This is a legal play.
3. In a jump ball with player B-2, player A-2 (opposite team) taps the ball. The ball strikes the floor, player A-2 then gains control and dribbles. This is a violation because the ball did not touch a non-jumper.

Answers

1. True. The inside edges of the end and side lines are the boundary lines of the court.
2. True. The try for a field goal ended when the ball struck the floor. Player control could then be regained and the dribble along with the score are both legal.
3. False. All restrictions for the jumper gaining possession of the ball end when the tapped ball touches one of the non-jumpers, the floor, the basket, or the backboard.

Tewksbury Adult Basketball

Sullivan's hands Wang first loss, 75-69

Sullivan's Insurance combined a strong inside game with the scoring of Jim Meuse and Mike Manna to hand Wang Labs its first defeat in the Tewksbury Adult Basketball League Thursday night. Manna led all scorers with 24 points while running mate Meuse canned 23 as Sullivan's moved into first place with a 2-0 record after the 75-69 win. Wang, led by guard Russ Dufresne's 20 points, 2-1. Sullivan center Mickey Sullivan chipped in with 11 points with forward Gerry D'Auteuil helping the Wang cause with 10.

In the night's second game defending champ M&S Mobil blitzed winless Jade East 65-48 with both clubs getting off to a miserable start at the game's outset. Mobil's Walter Salimis led the way with 22 points followed by forward Steve Catalano with 13. Jerry Welch topped the Jade East club with 10.

Thursday night, November 30, the league moves its games to the Junior Fullback Wallace was the mainstay of a stingy Tewksbury defense. Receiving honorable mention for Tewksbury were juniors Rich Catanzaro and Ha-Sok Chun and senior Paul Busser.

Leo's Canteen clips Chuckie's 6-3

Leo's Canteen 6-Chuckies 3
Phil McDonald opened the scoring for Chuckie's and after the first period was dominated by the Canteenmen. Scott O'Connell in the nets had kept Leo's close, and midway through the second period, the offense caught fire as Alan Dunlevy, John Carino and Ron Teixeira fired home scores. John Davis, Brian Walsh and Dunlevy (second goal) scored in the third period.

Peter Pellerin and Jay Walden fired home late scores for the never-say-die Chuckie's.

Fred F. Cain 7-Bulldogs 3

Two-goal performances by Dubby Yandle, Dan Westcott and Fred Medoungno (19th, and 20th of the season) provided the major firepower as the Caimmen took over sole possession of second place and moved within a half game of the league leading Bucko's at the expense of the Bulldogs. Kevin Gaffney was the main weapon for the Bulldogs as he fired in a pair, and single scores went to Wally Newell (FFC) and Jim DeCarolis (B).
